

These skidmarks led people from the subway to the MINI booth at the International Autoshow and reinforced the MINI's disruptive behaviour. After all, what other car would have the nerve to drive through the subway?