

A clear acetate was created for IKEA customers so they could hold it up against an empty space to see how nice their kitchen would look.